

Most Puzzle Workers Favor Locoed Statesmen Contest

All the readers of The Times must have become puzzleers this week, because I have never yet received such a quantity of answers to a contest as to the Locoed Statesmen.

This goes to show that this style of puzzle pleases the readers. One puzzle chaser wrote the other day that she liked puzzles of every sort, but the locoed kind were her favorite. I trust that the contest for the coming week will prove as interesting.

In a letter from Miss Leshar, an ardent puzzleer, she writes that if she does not win a prize this week, she will try again as she has tried in the past. Now that is the spirit I like to see and I am sure that it will win in the end. There is only one thing I do not like about these contests and that is that a prize cannot be given to every correct list, but, of course, in some instances it would be impossible.

Today at 3 o'clock the judges will make the attack on the large stack of answers and Sunday the winner will be published.

Here is luck to all.

FRANCES CARROLL.

Lavender Cleanest and Freshest Odor for Household Linen Use

Any girl who has no lavender in the drawer with her underclothes is missing a good deal, and will be wise to get to work immediately and make some lavender bags. It is the cleanest, freshest odor that one can have with clothing or household linen, and always seems somehow to give the impression of great cleanliness and carefulness. An especially appropriate use of these bags is to make them as a gift for an elder sister or friend who is going to be married. And she cannot have too many of them for her linen closet and bureau drawers.

There are many shapes and designs that can be used for them, some quite simple and others most beautifully embroidered. Some are made of silk and some of linen, but the most entirely satisfactory ones are made of a thin plain silk, with an outer case of white linen, like an envelope, that can be removed and washed. These linen cases will often outlast two or three supplies of the lavender, and so are well worth the trouble of some really pretty embroidery. They can be made square, oblong, round or triangular; can be sewed with a seam around the edge or the two pieces button-holed together. One thing is necessary, that is, to have small buttons and buttonholes, or hooks and eyes, so that the case can be easily taken from the inner bag when it needs washing.

A girl who wants to make a large number of these lavender bags can save trouble and get a very pretty effect by using handkerchiefs that are already embroidered. They may be folded over, with the corners together, making a square with one corner left open like the flap of an envelope; or they may be folded diagonally from one corner to the opposite one, making a triangle. The best way to open this case is to have it sewed half way up each side and have a pretty button at the top point.

The silk for the inner bag may, of course, be of the prevailing color of the room where it is to be used, but many people prefer lavender silk, as it seems especially to belong to the lavender flowers. Dried lavender flowers themselves can be bought at almost any drug store.

Fashion Hints

As a rule taffeta will be the petticoat of the new season.

A pearl gray glove is lovely with costumes in the gray shades.

Hips are slightly more emphasized than in the summer styles.

Traveling wraps are growing more decorative as time goes on.

The new cavalier hat is coming out in large and medium sizes.

Croque feathers will be very popular on the early fall millinery.

Striped suits are in favor, but the effects are rather indefinite.

The pink and blue gowns of the Louis periods are due for a revival.

The separate coat is to be far more important than for several years.

The latest in underwear is of mossa-line silk in dainty Dresden patterns.

Apricot, violet and light blue are worn in the morning by fashionable women.

Girdles and dog collars made of cut jet maille are exceedingly smart.

The long sleeve with the turned back frill is one of the newest fancies.

The white lace veil is still a craze, though less modish than the colored.

Shimmering silk stuffs in two-toned effects will be much seen the coming winter.

With dark suits jackets of bright colors are used, made usually of muslin, mousseline de soie and lace.

There is a new white wash suede that has taken the place of silk and lisle gloves with fashionable women.

White gilt buckles still retain their favor, some fancy footwear has buckles matching the color of the gown.

Mousseline and gauze ruching is used to finish gowns at the neck, of the sleeves, around the bottom of the skirt, and elsewhere.

Irish crochet is seen on all the cloth and silk gowns, and insets of Irish crochet, large as well as small, ornament waist of cottons and crepe.

Tasseled silk stockings are new. The fluffy silk tassel dangles from an embroidered design just high enough to show when the dress is lifted.

Girl's Attractiveness Often Spoiled by Careless Attire

A young woman who is remarkable for her intellect, her good heart, and her spiritual qualities called upon a friend recently, and, although these admirable traits were all photographed in her sweet and interesting face and expressed in her well-modulated voice, she affected that friend like discord in music.

This was the cause.

She sat with a sunken chest, elevated shoulders, and projecting chin, one leg crossed ungracefully over the other, and her whole attitude devoid of ease and elegance.

Added to this, she was carelessly dressed. Her attire was clean and fresh, to be sure, but the blouse waisted fitted badly about the shoulders.

There was no thought given to the choice of becoming colors, and her hat was unsuited to her style of face.

There is no genius, no goodness, no usefulness that can excuse a woman for being careless in dress or ungraceful in deportment.

Everything about a woman should express harmony and calm. It is utterly useless for the woman who is not beautiful within to attempt to seem beautiful by mere outward show.

She may deceive a few superficial observers for a time, but a selfish or cruel habit of thought or a vain mind soon hardens the eyes and the face and destroys the effect of the most tasteful attire and the most cultured manner.

But the good heart and the bright mind should not disguise itself under tasteless garments or express itself with awkward gestures. Besides being agreeable to the eyes, the proper deportment of attitude is an aid to the development of character.

To sit, walk, and stand with dignity and grace are accomplishments which help the mind and the spirit as well as the body.

Since the memory of man, the triangle has been a symbol of human character. The physical, the mental, the spiritual nature are expressed by the three sides of the triangle.

So soon as either line is imperfect or diseased, man is abnormal in his nature. And whatever is abnormal is deformed or diseased.

Learn composure. Learn grace. Learn deportment.

Learn how to sit down, how to rise, to stand, to walk.

These are important factors in a woman's education.

For a woman should be a thing of beauty to mind, heart, soul, ear, and eye.

Queries of Times

Readers Answered

Vaccination Compulsory.

R. N.—Under the Maryland law the vaccination of school children is compulsory.

Bride-Elect.

Bride-elect—The bridal party enters the church in this order: The ushers first, walking in pairs, then the bridesmaids, also walking in two and two, the maid of honor, and lastly the bride with her nearest male relative. In leaving the church the bride and bridesmaids walk first, followed by the best man and maid of honor, the ushers and bridesmaids.

A trained gown is generally worn with a "bridal veil." The bride chooses the color of the maid of honor's gown and while it is often white, it is not a fixed rule about the matter. A delicate mauve, pale pink, yellow, or any shade desired, may be worn.

To Clean White Felt.

Ethel—To clean a soiled white felt hat brush a paste made of powdered magnesia and water well into the felt, then let the hat dry thoroughly, when the magnesia should be brushed out. Generally the hat will then look like new, but in some cases it is necessary to repeat the whole process. Take care that you use a quite clean brush—nail-brush will do.

Oyster Cocktail.

Hostess—For oyster cocktail, allow eight small raw oysters for each person, and season with one tablespoon vinegar, one-half tablespoon catsup, three drops tobacco sauce, and salt. Serve in cocktail glasses and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley; or in one-half grapefruit from which the tough portions have been removed, and sprinkle with finely chopped celery.

This should be served as the first course at the table.

LET OTHER TALKER

FINISH SENTENCE

One of the social tricks that a young girl must guard against is the bad habit of interrupting some one else's conversation.

This does not mean joining a group of a couple who are talking and entering into their conversation or calling one of the persons away from it.

It means never letting the other person finish a sentence. It is a custom more observed in the bazaar than the performance, and it is markedly impolite.

No matter how long the sentence may be, or how eager you are to do something else, or have your own say, keep quiet and let the other talker finish that sentence.

It will teach you self-control, and this is, in itself, a great gain.

It will teach you courtesy, and this is imperative if you desire people to like you.

Florida Orange Season

Opens Here This Week

The new season on Florida oranges is having its beginning this week.

As is generally the case every year, the first shipments are a little green, which has a tendency to hold back their sale. The season is not starting with a rush, but demand is expected to considerably increase by the first of next month.

Practically all the Florida oranges now on the market were produced in the Indian river section. Several sizes of the fruit are represented in the shipment, with smaller sizes prevailing. While the majority of the crates are filled with oranges slightly green, the fruit is, nevertheless, sweet and juicy and possesses all the characteristics that differentiate Florida oranges from California.

As far as supply goes, reports received by dealers are to the effect that the Florida crop is much heavier than it was a year ago. When the season starts in earnest it is expected it will round out into one most satisfactory, from the respective standpoints of growers, dealers, and consumers, of any known in years.

CANNED TOMATOES.

Peel fourteen pounds of yellow tomatoes. Weigh seven pounds of granulated sugar and pour this over the tomatoes. Leave overnight, and in the morning drain off the syrup that has formed, put it over the fire and bring to a boil, skimming carefully. Put in the tomatoes, set a little to one side of the range and boil gently for twenty minutes. Remove the fruit with a spoon, and spread it on platters. Boil the syrup down until it thickens, adding just before you take it off the fire the juice of six lemons. Pack the tomatoes in jars and fill these to overflowing with the boiling syrup. When cold, seal.
